

Principal Connections' Collaborative Professionalism issue wins a Tabbie Silver Award

By Jacob Chouinard

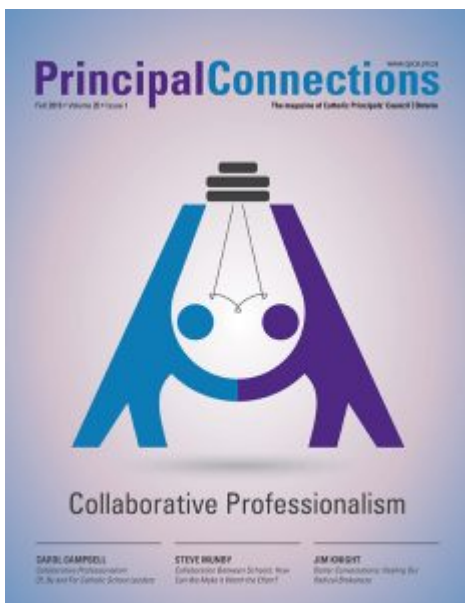

Photography by Hannah Yakobi and courtesy of the TABPI website

CPCO is delighted to receive an award for one of the recent issues of our magazine! This award was presented for our Collaborative Professionalism issue that was released in fall 2016, following a large rebranding strategy. Principal Connections has won awards throughout the years, but this is the first Tabbie award the magazine has received.

The Tabbie Awards have been around for over two decades, and are sponsored by Trade Association Business Publications International. The 2017 Tabbie Awards featured more than 400 entries, with nominations from the U.S., Canada, the U.K., Australia, New Zealand, Ireland, Singapore and South Africa.

The Collaborative Professionalism issue was awarded the Silver Award in the Front Cover, Digital Imagery category. To learn more about the 2017 Tabbie winners, or to read more about TABPI, you can visit www.tabpi.org.

Principal Connections has been published since 2000 and prints three times a year. With over 2,500 readers per issue, the CPCO professional learning magazine continues to grow and is starting to be recognized on an international level. To re-read the award-winning Collaborative Professionalism issue, you can visit www.cpcpo.on.ca. CPCO Associates can log in to access all issues of the magazine dating back to summer 2010.

The next edition of Principal Connections will be released in September 2017, and the feature theme is Student Well-Being.